

Aftermarket Sales and Engineering

Thank you for your interest in Ocean Air, Inc., the aerospace aftermarket sales and engineering experts.

With over 20 years of experience, the experts at Ocean Air supply commercial aircraft products for the aviation aftermarket – from planned maintenance to AOG conditions. We pride ourselves on our record of meeting or exceeding our customers' expectations for quality, value and response time.

At Ocean Air, we're also proud of our ISO 9001:2000 Certification, AC 0056 Accreditation, membership in good standing of the Airline Suppliers Association (ASA) and our status as an approved source for the United States Department of Defense (DoD).

Ocean Air specializes in airborne communication, navigation, and instrumentation systems for a wide range of aircraft types including Boeing, Douglas, Airbus and Lockheed. In addition to selling commercial aircraft parts, we also purchase parts for resale to other distributors and aircraft operators. Some of the advantages we offer our customers include:

- Timely response and competitive prices. We deliver the part you need quickly and economically – and often at the lowest price. We will always try to beat a competitor's quote.
- 24/7 availability. With expert personnel on call 24 hours a day, seven days a week, we can solve your AOG requirements.
- Industry expertise. Our experienced and knowledgeable staff take a proactive role, solving interchangeability issues and delivery challenges efficiently, effectively and often at the lowest cost available.
- Professional service and quality. Because our cutting edge technology connects us to sites across the globe, we can ship products around the world within hours. High service standards met or exceeded regularly by our staff of professionals keeps satisfied customers returning often.
